JOURNAL OF THE SENATE

NINETY-FIFTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY

OF THE

STATE OF MISSOURI

FIRST REGULAR SESSION

FIRST DAY—WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 7, 2009

The Senate was called to order at 12:00 noon by Lieutenant Governor Peter Kinder.

The Reverend Carl Gauck offered the following prayer:

Either we are adrift in chaos or we are individuals, created, loved, upheld and placed purposefully, exactly where we are. (Elisabeth Elliot)

Gracious God, here we are where You have intended each of us to serve and we are grateful for the opportunity. As we begin a new session with new colleagues and new leadership we pray for them being mindful of all the new challenges that have come to face us in this new year. We pray that You will guide our hearts and thinking as we try to deal with each issue that we must address. Keep us mindful of the people that are affected by our decisions and that we do our very best to balance the stress and burdens our decisions will create. All this we ask in Your holy name. Amen.

Opening Address

Senator Charlie Shields, President Pro Tem

First Regular Session, 95th General Assembly

January 7, 2009

Lt. Governor Kinder, members of the Missouri Senate, our families, friends, and people of Missouri:

I thank the Senate for your confidence and the honor of leading this great institution. A special thanks to the senator from St. Clair and the senator from Cole, two colleagues that I have worked with my entire legislative career. I would also like to recognize my wife Brenda, who without her patience, support and most of all - really sound advice, I would not be before you today. Also with me are my sons, Brandt and Bryce, who it seems both grew up in this capitol, and my parents, Charles and Rosalie Shields. I also want to recognize Judge Dan Kellogg. Judge Kellogg and I ran against each other for the Missouri House in 1992. We emerged from that campaign as friends – not something you see very often in today’s political world. And I thank all my friends from St. Joseph who made the trip to our capitol to join us today.

Today, we begin this legislative session in what most would describe as “interesting times.” Our state is in a difficult financial situation. The good news is that because of our decisions in the past, we are financially better off than most states. Despite that, our new governor, the House of Representatives and the Senate will be making difficult decisions in the next four and half months to meet our mandate of a balanced budget.

I believe our task at hand is to learn from our current challenges to create a plan to sustain economic prosperity and a high quality of life for Missourians for years to come. While our current financial situation creates difficult choices, it also creates opportunities. I was recently at a conference where David Holl, president and CEO of a Fortune 500 company, made this statement, “Never let a good financial crisis go to waste – use it to make the difficult decisions that you refused to make when times were good.” Like Holl, we have the opportunity to use this crisis to make difficult decisions, but more importantly to focus on a long-term strategy to build the state Missourian’s want.

To accomplish this, we must first understand why we are in the situation we are in. Second, we must craft a vision of what Missouri can be. Third, we must create a road map of how we are going to get there. And last, we must constantly measure ourselves against our vision to know if we are on the right track. We must do all this, knowing that term limits will remove most of us before our vision is realized – that’s why it is equally as important that we commit to the process as much as we commit to the vision.

We all know the situation that Missouri is in: tough economic times, difficult problems with urban education, a disorganized system of higher education, children entering school not ready to learn, a budget that continues to grow despite our best efforts, and more and more Missourians without health insurance. So how did we get here? W. Edwards Deming, considered the father of the modern quality evolution, said this with regard to struggling businesses, “Your system is perfectly designed to give you the results you are getting.” To translate that to state government, all of our collective decisions of the past, Republican, Democrat, House, Senate, Executive Branch and the Courts have brought us to the place we are today. Our system has given us the results we are getting. In short, we are a $23 billion organization without a long-term vision and operating without the benefit of a strategic plan.

So what is our vision of a better Missouri? Most would argue that it centers on economic prosperity and opportunity for our citizens. Almost all indicators of quality of life, educational opportunities, health status and the ability of one generation to succeed more than its previous generations evolve around economic opportunities for our citizens. Missouri ranks 33rd in the nation in median family income. In higher education, we rank 30th in the number of our 25-34 year olds with a degree past high school. In health status, Missouri ranks 38th in the nation.

In all these rankings, Missouri is close to the middle of the pack of our nation’s states. The question for us is, do we have to stay there? I say no. I ask everyone in this chamber, why can’t we be a top-ten state in family income? Why can’t our young people be among the most educated in our nation? Why can’t our citizens have healthier lives, be more productive and live longer than those of our neighboring states? The truth is that we can, and that should be the vision upon which we build our strategic plan.

So how do we become a top-ten state in these indicators? It comes down to three strategies.

The first strategy is to continue the work of the legislature and our previous governor to make Missouri a place where businesses can grow and thrive. We must continue to develop the tools to help our existing businesses grow and to attract new businesses that will bring jobs to our citizens. Programs such as the Quality Jobs Act that have added thousands of jobs to our economy, new programs such as those we crafted to attract Bombardier - although we didn't get that company - we sent a message that Missouri is open for business. We must work to make sure our regulatory environment is responsible to our natural resources, but doesn't become such a burden that it drives jobs out of our state. We must continue to maintain our litigation and workers' compensation policy that is fair and keeps jobs in our borders. We must build on these policies and create new tools to attract the jobs of the future.

The second strategy is to bring more people into health coverage. Missouri businesses cannot continue to bear the cost of providing insurance to their employees and also pay for the costs of the uninsured through their premium payments. Our state government will move from one budget crisis to another if we do not get a handle on the growth of healthcare costs. Simply put, we must begin to make serious strides towards moving our state's 700,000 uninsured into coverage. This cannot be done simply by expanding MO HealthNet. It can only be accomplished by working with employers, hospitals, physicians, insurance companies and our federal government to blend funding streams and create market incentives to bring these citizens into a rational healthcare system.

Our third strategy should be to build an educated workforce for our future. The correlation between the economic prosperity of a state and the level of education of its workforce is indisputable. Our state will never succeed if we cannot increase the educational attainment of our citizens.

According to the Lumina Foundation for Education, the United States for years led the world as the most successful and prosperous nation because our people had typically been the most educated. Our nation now ranks 10th among industrialized nations in the percentage of young adults with college degrees.

While the U.S. ranks 10th in the world, Missouri ranks 30th in the nation behind our neighboring states: Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Illinois. Of the nations ranked, Mexico is on the bottom of the list, yet we have 47 counties in Missouri that have education levels below Mexico for young adults.

As a strategy, we must move more of our young people into an education experience past high school if we are going to compete with our neighboring states. But more importantly, we must do this if we are going to compete with the rest of the world.

This strategy is not just a higher education strategy; our work must take place along the entire spectrum of education. In the next two days, ten children will be born in St. Joseph, Missouri. Almost all of them are born in the hospital where I work. If nothing changes and past statistics hold true, only one of those ten children born in my community will hold a bachelors degree by the time they reach age 25. The other nine will not all get lost in higher education, they will get lost along the way. Two will fail because they didn't enter kindergarten ready to learn. Two more will get lost somewhere in elementary school, maybe because they don't have a parent who cares. Two will get lost in middle school, but will be promoted to high school because we will not know what else to do with them. We will lose two more in high school, because they simply won't see any reason to go to college. And of the last two that start college, one will drop out because they can't afford to continue. I said they are all born where I work, and often I walk down to the nursery just to look at them. The amazing thing is they all look like they have potential and at two days old, I can't pick the one out of ten that will succeed.

If we are to succeed in creating a more educated workforce, we must make changes in our education system from birth to higher education. Our early childhood education system needs to make sure every child enters school ready to learn by ensuring access to quality early childhood education and support for stay-at-home parents. Our elementary and secondary education system has to produce students who are capable of post-secondary education, and our higher education system has to realize the competition is not with each other, but with countries like India and China.

I have articulated a vision and the beginnings of a strategic plan to make Missouri an even better place to live, work and raise a family. However, the truth is that it can't be just my vision, it has to be a collective vision for our state, and it has to be implemented with a strategic plan, and it has to be constantly measured to know if we are on the right track. This work requires a dedicated group of individuals to help refine the vision, to help create the strategic plan, to help hold people accountable to make sure we reach our goal. I can think of no better group to do this important work than the 33 senators in front of me.

Each one of you represents 165,000 constituents who elected you to make a better Missouri. You come to this job with amazing backgrounds: lawyers, farmers, teachers, journalists, college professors, and business owners. You bring wisdom from every corner of this state. You are part of a body that is designed to sustain itself for centuries. And most of all, because I have had the opportunity to work with each of you, I know you have dedicated your life to making this state a better place.

You are the senior board of directors for our state who can move us from a short-sighted, reactionary organization to one with vision and purpose. Our challenge as the Missouri Senate is: assess the situation we are in, develop the vision of where we want to be as a state, create and implement the plan for how we are going to reach our vision, and make sure we always measure ourselves against the goals and plans we have made. And we must do this in a process that can be sustained after we are gone from these chambers.

In conclusion, many will look at the times we are in and decide that our state is destined for failure and continued troubles. I look at these times and believe we have a unique opportunity to learn from the past and to set ourselves on a long-term plan to create a better state. To accomplish this, we must work closely with the House of Representatives and Governor-elect Nixon – our voters demand we work together and our success depends upon it.

Peter Drucker, the legendary management guru said, “The best way to predict the future is to create it.”

I look around this chamber and can’t think of 34 people who are more suited to create Missouri’s future.

Thank you.

Help us to spend time with our families knowing in the weeks ahead there will be less and less time for us to do that. Thank you, President Pro-tem Shields and Speaker Richard, for joining us as well.

Governor and Mrs. Blunt, thank you both for being here and for your years of service to the State of Missouri.

I welcome Senators Bond and McCaskill, the other members of our Congressional delegation and the members of the Missouri General Assembly who have joined us today.

I’m joined today by Missouri’s new First Lady and the love of my life, Georganne Nixon. And we’re proud to be joined by our sons, Jeremiah and Will, and the rest of our family.

And I thank all of you for coming out today.

Well, here we are. Together, in the heart of winter. Here from different corners of the state. From different walks of life.

But today we stand united – as much as any time in history. United as Americans. And as Missourians.

United by the common uncertainty of our future. Not knowing what tomorrow will bring.

Worried that this uncertain economy will mean that our children may not have every opportunity that we’ve had.

The challenges we face are historic. But so are the opportunities.

Ladies and gentlemen: Today marks a new day for Missouri.

Today, we make a fresh start. It’s a day on which we separate the shortcomings of yesterday from the hope of tomorrow.

Today, we stop thinking about what should have been. And we start creating the future we all deserve.

Today, we turn the page.

Together, we mark a new day for Missouri.

Here in the Show-Me State, we have honorable and hardworking people. Skilled and talented workers and craftspeople.

But too many Missourians can't make ends meet in the job they're in, can't find the job they want, or fear they may lose the job they have. Too many Missourians are working harder and harder, but are not getting ahead.

The current economic downturn has certainly made these problems worse, and immediate action is needed. But in tackling the problems of today, we must not lose sight of the longer-term challenge: to boldly move Missouri's economy into the 21st Century.

The world around us is changing, and it's happening quickly. The new economy is upon us.

The people of this great state have never waited for the future; we've always sought it out. We are a state born from pioneers and innovators.

In the 19th Century, Daniel Boone and Lewis and Clark helped pave the way for a new state to take its place in a still-imperfect nation. Their Missouri stories are now legend.

And at the start of the 20th Century, George Washington Carver, a young man born into slavery, forever changed the agriculture industry for the entire world.

We have a history of overcoming adversity with innovation. And just as our forebears inspired a nation by settling a new land west of the Mississippi in the first days of the 19th Century, so today Missourians must lead our nation by seizing the new opportunities of the 21st Century.

Here in Missouri, we will not only compete. We will lead.

This new economy requires a new day for Missouri.

We'll invest in new technology. We'll inspire cutting-edge innovation. And we'll embrace science, not fear it.

And not only will we lead with our ideas, but we'll also lead with our greatest asset – our people. We must prepare our world-class workers with 21st-Century skills and connect them with the jobs of tomorrow that we will create.

The jobs that will lead our nation to energy independence.

The jobs that will build fuel-efficient automobiles and energy-efficient homes.

The jobs that will develop the lifesaving cures of tomorrow.

The jobs that will change the way we do business, change the way we travel and change the way we channel information.

All right here in Missouri.

We'll turn this economy around by making Missouri a magnet for next-generation jobs.

To bring about a new day in Missouri, we'll need to implement new policies. And this new day will not be possible unless there is a new tone in Jefferson City.

Because for too many years, politics and partisanship have stood in the way of progress. And the people of Missouri are tired of it.

The family in Hannibal that's struggling to pay for health care has no appetite for partisan bickering in Jefferson City.

The new father in Rolla who had his job outsourced doesn't care if an economic stimulus plan was written by a Democrat or a Republican. He just wants to make ends meet for his young family.

And the small businesswoman struggling to keep the doors open on Main Street doesn't have a lobbyist walking the halls of the Capitol for her.

The only way we'll meet the needs of Missouri families is by working together. In a bipartisan way, across the aisle. Putting our shared principles ahead of our political differences.

Now, new leadership in Jefferson City and in Washington isn't enough. The answers to our problems won't all come from government.

We need new leaders to step up in communities across our state – and I'm not just talking about elected officials.

Tough times call for a renewed sense of purpose. A new day for public service and volunteerism.

We need all Missourians to step up and do more to make our communities stronger.

We need more parents to get active in our local schools.

We need more role models to mentor our children and coach our youth sports teams.

We must get involved in our places of worship. Get involved in our local civic groups. Volunteer our time at senior citizen homes.

Community service is not a chore or a burden. It's a responsibility, and an honor.

We will only turn our state around if we all do our part.

I grew up in De Soto, Mo. – a small town in Jefferson County. I go back frequently and visit with old friends. When I do, I'm reminded why our state is so strong.

It's because here in Missouri, we go to work early and stay late.

We love our families and our faith. We have a strong tradition of neighbor-helping-neighbor. And when times are tough, we meet the challenges, and we always come back stronger.

And I know a lot of folks around this state could use a fresh start. A new beginning. A reason to believe that the best days for their families are still to come.

The next generation will be able to seize opportunities that we cannot even imagine today. We can protect our special way of life here in Missouri, while at the same time moving boldly to embrace the future.

Together, we can see that future. Today is a new day for Missouri.

It's a new day for every child in our state with big dreams.

It's a new day for the small-business owner who knows that with a little help, her hard work will pay off, and brighter days are ahead.

It's a new day for the family that recently sat around the kitchen table to decide if they should take out a second mortgage so that they can send their second child to college.

And it's a new day for the men and women who work day-in and day-out to build the best products in America. The autoworker, the construction worker, the lab technician and the engineer.

As your Governor, I will work every day to help make this brighter future a reality for all Missouri families.

I am honored and humbled by the opportunity to lead our state during this critical time.

As our family moves into the Governor's Mansion, we do so knowing that it's your house – not ours. And we hope you'll visit us often.

And together, we will make a new day for Missouri.

Thank you, and God bless.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS

Senator Wright-Jones offered the following concurrent resolution:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 4

WHEREAS, over one-half of all IV-D caseloads in Missouri are low-income families who rely on child support for up to one-quarter of their total income. Unfortunately, the noncustodial parent responsible for providing these payments are often too poor to support themselves much less fulfill a child support order; and

WHEREAS, low-income noncustodial fathers are a particularly disadvantaged group. In addition to being low-skilled and low-educated, they often have criminal records and suffer from many poverty-related problems such as poor health. All of these characteristics are barriers to finding high-paying jobs; and

WHEREAS, federal, state, and local child support agencies have attempted to increase compliance among these fathers in two ways: lowering child support orders to better meet ability to pay and addressing the underlying reasons for nonpayment by connecting low-income parents to employment services; and

WHEREAS, lowering child support orders is successful in increasing compliance, it results in significantly lower payments to poor families; and

WHEREAS, one way to assure that low-income noncustodial parents receive the attention they need is to establish separate child support dockets known as "Fathering Courts"; and

WHEREAS, Fathering Courts are an innovative alternative to prosecution and incarceration for men with significant child support arrearages. The program increases the number of fathers that contribute financially and emotionally to their children and helps men successfully overcome the challenges that have led to their nonpayment of child support; and

WHEREAS, the longest-running Fathering Court is in Jackson County, Missouri, and since its creation in 1998 has increased child support collections by more than $2 million. The Jackson County Fathering Court has become a model for others across the country; and

WHEREAS, the Jackson County Fathering Court is designed to give noncustodial parents the tools to become financially and emotionally responsible for their children. Parents are educated, counseled, and encouraged to place the needs of their children first; and

WHEREAS, by emphasizing the needs of the children, the Fathering Court seeks to promote the well-being of potentially thousands of children who are involved in the state's child support enforcement system; and

WHEREAS, the Fathering Court addresses alcohol, drug, employment, and mental health issues that affect some fathers who face child support charges; and

WHEREAS, the success of Fathering Courts depends heavily upon judicial support and initiative. After a father is arrested for failure to pay child support, he is screened to ensure that he does not have any other serious felonies and then the Fathering Court process begins. Fathers stay in the program until they have worked through their issues and resumed paying child support; and

WHEREAS, more than 429 men have participated in the Fathering Court since 1998. To date, Fathering Court graduates have contributed more than $2.7 million in child support payments. In addition, pre- and post-evaluations indicate that men who graduated from Fathering Court have significantly more contact with their children, increased interaction with their child's mother about their child's development, and pay their child support:

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED by the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-fifth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, that in order to ensure thoughtful and necessary changes are made to the state's child support enforcement system in order to increase the number of noncustodial parents participating in the financial and emotional needs of their children, the General Assembly must comprehensively study and reform the system; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives appoint a Joint Interim Committee on Child Support Enforcement Reform that is authorized to function during the legislative interim between the First Regular Session of the Ninety-fifth General Assembly and the Second Regular Session of the Ninety-fifth General Assembly to study and make recommendations regarding a reform of the state's child support enforcement system, including a study of the Fathering Court in Jackson County as a model for the entire state; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Joint Interim Committee shall prepare a final report, together with its recommendations for any legislative action deemed necessary for submission to the General Assembly prior to commencement of the Second Regular Session of the Ninety-fifth General Assembly; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Joint Interim Committee may solicit input and information necessary to fulfill its obligations, including but not limited to soliciting input and information from any state department or agency the Joint Interim Committee deems relevant, child advocates, the courts, and the general public; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the staffs of Senate Research, the Joint Committee on Legislative Research, and House Research shall provide such legal, research, clerical, technical, and bill drafting services as the Joint Interim Committee may require in the performance of its duties; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the actual and necessary expenses of the Joint Interim Committee, its members, and any staff assigned to the Joint Interim Committee incurred by the Joint Interim Committee shall be paid by the Joint Contingent Fund.

Senator Stouffer offered the following concurrent resolution:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 5

WHEREAS, the State of Missouri contains 553 miles of the Missouri River, which borders 23 Missouri counties and over 50 Missouri communities, making it one of the State's greatest natural resources; and

WHEREAS, the Missouri General Assembly supports this natural resource as a vital link in the State of Missouri's total transportation system and wishes to maximize this valuable asset in order to move freight and to support our state's economy; and

WHEREAS, barge transport allows for significant economic benefits and cost savings, since one barge can transport the same amount of freight as 15 railcars or 60 trucks; and

WHEREAS, river transportation is the most environmentally friendly form of transporting goods and commodities, creating almost no noise pollution and emitting 35 to 60 percent fewer pollutants than either trucks or trains; and

WHEREAS, barges are also the most fuel efficient method of freight transport, barges can move one ton of cargo 576 miles per gallon of fuel, compared to 413 miles per gallon of fuel for railcars and only 155 miles per gallon of fuel for trucks; and

WHEREAS, the Missouri General Assembly recognizes that the State of Missouri is investing more of its resources to develop and improve public ports in the state, including those on the Missouri River; and

WHEREAS, the Flood Control Act of 1944, as amended, expresses the United States Congress' intent to support inland waterway navigation and to provide flood control on our nation's rivers; and

WHEREAS, the June 4, 2003, August 16, 2005, and February 8, 2008, decisions of the United States Court of Appeals of the Eighth Circuit held that navigation was a dominant function of the Flood Control Act of 1944; and

WHEREAS, navigation on the Missouri River is operated in accordance with the updated Master Manual, which contains the management plan for the River and was adopted by the United States Army Corps of Engineers in 2004; and

WHEREAS, the Missouri General Assembly recognizes that the United States Army Corps of Engineers utilized extensive public processes to complete the 2004 Master Manual and worked to balance the needs and desires of many competing stakeholder groups in establishing the Manual's navigation guidelines; and

WHEREAS, the 2004 Master Manual was finalized after 15 years of debate and litigation and after the expenditure of over $35 million in federal funds; and

WHEREAS, the 2004 Missouri River Master Water Control Manual reduced the length of the navigation season, shifting a large amount of water away from navigation and other downstream uses of the Missouri River to benefit upstream uses, such as reservoir recreation; and

WHEREAS, the upstream states have requested that the United States Army Corps of Engineers conduct a study to reexamine the authorized purposes of the Missouri River reservoir system as outlined in the 1994 Flood Control Act; and

WHEREAS, the study requested by the upstream states would be the first of its kind, because it would scrutinize the authorized purposes of the Missouri River reservoir system rather than studying the current Missouri River Master Water Control Manual, thereby undermining the Manual's management plan for the Missouri River; and

WHEREAS, in requesting this study, the upstream states are seeking an additional shift in water to upstream states, despite Congress' authorization of downstream uses of Missouri River water, including navigation; and

WHEREAS, increasing Missouri River water in upstream states will have a significant, negative impact upon Missouri and other downstream states by impacting navigation, power generation, flood control, and drinking water availability; and

WHEREAS, eighteen power plants, which have the capacity to generate over 11,000 megawatts of electricity, draw cooling water from the lower Missouri River basin, and the viability of those power plants would be jeopardized if the authorized purposes of the Missouri River reservoir system were changed; and

WHEREAS, the State of Missouri has constructed infrastructure to support water supply and power generation in the lower Missouri River basin with the understanding that reliable navigation flows would be maintained in the future, and this study could threaten the reliability of those navigation flows; and

WHEREAS, the Missouri General Assembly believes that all of the congressionally authorized uses of the Missouri River should be promoted, not just those uses benefitting the upstream states:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-fifth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, hereby urge the United States Congress to deny any request that would authorize a study of the Missouri River's congressionally authorized purposes; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-fifth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, hereby urge Missouri's Congressional delegation to actively oppose the authorization and funding of the Missouri River study proposed by the upstream states; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Senate be instructed to prepare a properly inscribed copy of this resolution for the United States Army Corps of Engineers and to each member of Missouri's Congressional delegation.

Senator Lager assumed the Chair.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 6

Relating to the recommendations of the Citizen's Commission on Compensation for Elected Officials.

WHEREAS, the voters of Missouri approved a constitutional amendment in 1994 that created a commission charged with setting the amount of compensation paid to statewide elected officials, legislators and judges; and

WHEREAS, prior to the approval of this amendment, the General Assembly had the duty and responsibility of setting salaries; and

WHEREAS, the Missouri Citizen's Commission on Compensation for Elected Officials has recommended that judges, statewide elected officials, and legislators receive the same increase in salary as the average state worker for the fiscal years beginning in July 2009 and July 2010, provided that legislators shall not receive such increases until January 1, 2011; and

WHEREAS, the Commission has also recommended an additional leadership differential of $2,500 annually for the representative serving as Speaker of the House of Representatives and the senator serving as the President Pro Tempore of the Senate, as well as an additional leadership differential of $1,500 annually for the representative serving as Speaker Pro Tempore of the House of Representatives and to each senator or representative serving as the Majority or Minority Floor Leader of the Senate or the House of Representatives; and

WHEREAS, the Commission has also recommended that each Associate Circuit Judge's salary be increased by $1,500 each year prior to calculating any salary increase based on the increase in the average state worker's salary. Further, a leadership differential of $2,500 annually shall be paid to the judge serving as Chief Justice. Finally, the Commission recommended that judges be provided expense reimbursement at the same rate as members of the General Assembly for up to three days attendance at the Judicial Conference of Missouri; and

WHEREAS, the state has many other priorities for appropriating money in the budget that are far more important than the salary increases recommended by the Commission; and

NOW, THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that we, the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-fifth General Assembly, hereby grant the Missouri Community College Association use of the Senate Chamber on Monday, February 23, 2009, from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m.

Senator Griesheimer requested unanimous consent of the Senate that the rules be suspended for the purpose of taking SR 49 up for adoption, which request was granted.

On motion of Senator Griesheimer, SR 49 was adopted.

Senator Clemens offered Senate Resolution No. 50, regarding Alexander Scott "Alex" DeGood, Springfield, which was adopted.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTIONS

Senator Shoemyer offered the following concurrent resolution:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 8

WHEREAS, horse processing is the most tightly regulated of any animal harvest, and the horse is the only animal that has its transportation to processing regulated. If horse processing plants are forced to close and export options are eliminated, the Horse Welfare Coalition estimates that 90,000 to 100,000 unwanted horses annually would be exposed to potential abandonment and neglect; and

WHEREAS, the 90,000 to 100,000 additional unwanted horses each year would compete for adoption with the 32,000 wild horses that United States taxpayers are already paying $40 million to shelter and feed; and

WHEREAS, the nation's inadequate, overburdened, and unregulated horse rescue and adoption facilities cannot handle the influx of the approximately 60,000 or more additional horses each year that would result from a harvesting ban, according to the Congressional Research Service; and

WHEREAS, many zoo animal diets rely on equine protein because it mimics what the animal would receive in the wild. Veterinarians and animal nutritionists say it is the healthiest diet for big cats and rare birds. If legislation shuts down horse processing facilities, the only source for this meat that is inspected by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will be eliminated:

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-fifth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, hereby urge the United States Congress to strongly support the continuation of horse processing in the United States and to offer incentives that help create horse processing plants throughout the United States, such as state-inspected horse harvest for export; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri General Assembly strongly encourage Congress to support new horse processing facilities and the continuation of existing facilities on both the state and national level; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri General Assembly urge Congress to oppose any legislation introduced in the 111th Congress that would restrict the transportation and processing of horses in the United States and internationally; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri General Assembly support the location of USDA-approved horse processing facilities on state, tribal, or private lands under mutually-acceptable and market-driven land leases and, if necessary, a mutually-acceptable assignment of revenues that meet the needs of all parties involved with the facility; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Missouri Senate be instructed to prepare properly inscribed copies of this resolution for the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives and the members of the Missouri Congressional delegation.

Senator Shoemyer offered the following concurrent resolution:

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 9

WHEREAS, the practice of saving seed from one year's harvest in order to plant it for the next year's crop has been an integral part of farming for as long as farming has existed; and

WHEREAS, the act of patenting seed and not allowing the seed to be saved from one crop to the next goes against thousands of years of agricultural practice; and

WHEREAS, the use of federal patent law in this manner allows the patent holder to create a monopoly in this country on the sale of certain crop seeds; and

WHEREAS, the creation of a monopoly under federal patent law contradicts the spirit of federal anti-trust law as well as violates the spirit of the independent American farmer:

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the members of the Missouri Senate, Ninety-fifth General Assembly, First Regular Session, the House of Representatives concurring therein, encourage Congress to amend the Patent Act so that the natural offspring of a patented seed are not considered to be covered under the original patent and amend the Patent Act so that inadvertent possession of a seed containing a patented cell or any offspring of such a seed is not considered infringement of the original patent; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Secretary of the Missouri Senate be instructed to prepare a properly inscribed copy of this resolution for each member of Missouri's Congressional delegation.
